GETS THE GIANTS' FIRST RUN

Farrell Makes a Neat Double Play on a Third Strike

MR. BARNIE IS NOT TO RETIRE.

But a Shake-Up in the Field Is Promised for the Kentucky Team.

(Special to The Evening World.)
FOLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, June 12 .- A despatch from Louisville to-day, which said that Billie Barnie would probably be deposed from the manage ment of the "Colonels," created a wild sensation in the camp of the visitors. Vice-Preadent Ruckstruhl, of the Louis villes, who is accompanying the team on its Eastern tour, said there was no truth in the statement. Mr. Ruckstruhl owns the controlling interest in the club, and what he says generally goes. He said Barnie was all right, but the trouble lies in the field. It is there that changes will be made, if the Colonels do not hit a quickstep pretty soon. The attendance here this afternoon was discouragingly meagre. Less than 1,000 spectators passed within the turnstiles. The afternoon was somewhat threatening, meteorologically, but it was a capital day for the game, the sun being obscured by clouds. Here is the make-up of each team:

Louisville went to bat first.

First Inning—Brown began magnificently for his side by knocking out a peach over second for a clean singla, and he succeeded easily in getting to second on Van Haltren's slow handling of the leather. Twitchell pleased the talent by fanning thrice, and tagged back to his bench morelly.

O'Rourke accentuated the pleasure when he, too, slashed a trio of slices out of the muggy atmosphere and joined third with neatness and despatch. Weaver was good enough to bat out a rippling bounder to Nurphy, who hadn't Tiernan shot a beauty, which promised to land behind centre field ropes, but it fell a bit short and when it did fail Brown was on hand.

Farrell hit to Denny, who threw to second, nailing Van Haitren, who was forced to run. No runs.

Third Inning-Real struck out. Grim welted a cracker over third, which wenter in Briteeville, and the held bleeds in Briteeville, and the held bleeds two real large bases on it. Brown struck out.

Twitchell coaxed one off the tip of his willow to short right, and Grim scored before Tiernan could return the ball. O'Rourke hit to Davis, who touched Twitchell, who was forced at third on the hit. One run.

Meekin rapped a fifer Murphy foul filled to firm the latter burden of the press box. Burke sacrificed, Richardson to O'Rourke, advancing Meekin to third, and the Giant pitcher ambled across the plate on Davis's birdie hit into deep left.

"Yes," replied Munxinger, "the Board of Directors had a meeting last night and ordered me to turn over all the books of the Club to the Chairman of this Committee.

Munxinger called for his man, Dowling, and the latter brought up two bis square bundles tied up in brown paper.

Mr. Nicoll wanted to know what the object of the testimony was, and objects to the inspection of books belonging to a private social club.

"It would be just as proper to call for the books of the University or Union League Club," said Mr. Nicoll.

The Committee thought differently, and Mr. Goff said he did not propose to go into any of the private or social affairs of the individual members, and Mr. Nicoll was overruled.

Mr. Nicoll was overruled.

Munxinger enumerated the books which he had appliced. There were a description Mr. Nicoll was overruled.

Munzinger enumerated the books which he had produced. There were a dozen of

No Record of Ticket Sales.

No Record of Ticket Sales.

"Which of these books contains the record of the sale of tickets for plonics or chowder parties gotten up by the Club?" asked Mr. Goff.

"None of them, so far as I know."

"You kept no record of these affairs the expenses, receipts and so forth?"

"I think not."

"I think not."

"I think not."

"Oh, yes. Each member took a certain number of the tickets and paid for them. A committee always got these things up. The officers had nothing to do with them."

Mr. Munsinger said the last chowder party was given last Summer. He dienot know who was on the Committee. He afterwards admitted that he was on the Committee, but said no records were kept of the meetings. He didn't know who printed the tickets or to whom they went after being printed except it was to the secretary of the Committee.

"Wasn't there a special chowder size."
